

Will it read the same as older HunterLab instruments?

---

With many common optical components Vista has very good correlation to ColorQuest and UltraScan VIS. Both use the same set of filters for measuring inter-instrument agreement, and preliminary results indicate that the filter measurements have excellent agreement within the current population. HunterLab will publish inter-instrument agreement results when a statistically significant dataset is available.